Excerpt: .and examine the petty shops of little dealers, which contain but the litter of a day compared with the Augean stables above described. They seem to forget, that, from contaminated sources, the stream must be impure. The retail Chemists and Druggists of the metropolis and some provin cial districts, and those practitioners of pharmacy, who are not members of the Apothecaries Company, or who do not purchase from their stock, must be supplied by the manufacturing Chemists and wholesale Druggists. The ability of these dealers to prepare all Medicines with correctness, is not questioned; but, so long as the supervising control of the Censors of the College of Physicians, and the proper officers of the Apothecaries Company, shall remain a dead letter as far as regards them, the competition in trade, by endeavouring to undersell each other, will continue an inexhaustible-source of domestic calamity and public mischief. Volatile, lenitive electuary, and many other articles, will be found different from those made at Apothecaries Hall; this is an assertion, which admits of easy proof, by purchasing a small quantity of such things at the shop of the Chemist and of the Apothecary, Who is a member of the Com, pany. It might be speciously alleged by the Che mist and Druggist, that, although there may be a difference in smell and taste, his commodities are equally good: but, it could be answered, that his opinion is not required, that it is his duty to produce the...
